Finmeccanica supports the Diocesan Museum for the tenth year running

Finmeccanica, which has always been keen to combine its industrial efforts with strong support for cultural activities, has renewed its association with the Milan Diocesan Museum for the tenth year in succession by sponsoring the traditional fund-raising concert of the Saint Ambrose Foundation in aid of the Museum, now in its tenth year.

The next concert will be given on 6 October at the Basilica of Sant'Eustorgio which, in 2000, saw the inauguration of the collaboration between Finmeccanica and the Diocesan Museum. From that day on, Finmeccanica has never failed to show its support by taking part each year in the traditional autumn concert to raise funds for the reconstruction and restoration of the Cloisters of Sant'Eustorgio, the buildings that today house the Museum's collections, and then of subsequent extensions to them.

Finmeccanica's relationship with culture is of long standing, rooted in the conviction that industrial endeavour and technological excellence must work together to forge a concrete and significant presence in society. It is this thinking that has made the Group keen to participate in great cultural events by offering them support in the shape of funding, innovation and state-of-the-art technology.
